U. S. Releases 10 More Ships to British

WILL TRANSFER CUTTERS FROM COAST GUARD

White House Announces Move to Bolster Transatlantic Lines of Supply.

HUGE LOSSES CITED

Rear Admiral Says U. S. Should Help Britain Fight Nazi Convoy Raiders.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The release of ten coast guard cutters to the British was announced today at the White House.

Stephen Early, presidential press secretary, told reporters the coast guard vessels had not yet been delivered, but were being prepared for the transfer under terms of the lease-lend bill

He said he preferred not to disclose the names of the cutters but said they were built from 1928 to 1932

No commercial ships or naval craft are involved in the deal, Early said Presumably, he added, the cutters will be turned over to British crews on this side of the Atlantic.

The vessels will help replenish Britain's vital forces used for maintaining her trans-Atlantic supply lines.

The cutters are armed but early said he thought they had little more than one-pound cannon mounted on them. He said he doubted that additional armament would be placed on the ships before the transfer.

Meanwhile, an outspoken suggestion by the chief of the maritime commission that the United States might well help Britain combat Nazi convoy raiders aroused fresh discussion of the possibility of an early government move toward giving the British naval assistance.

The commission chairman, Rear

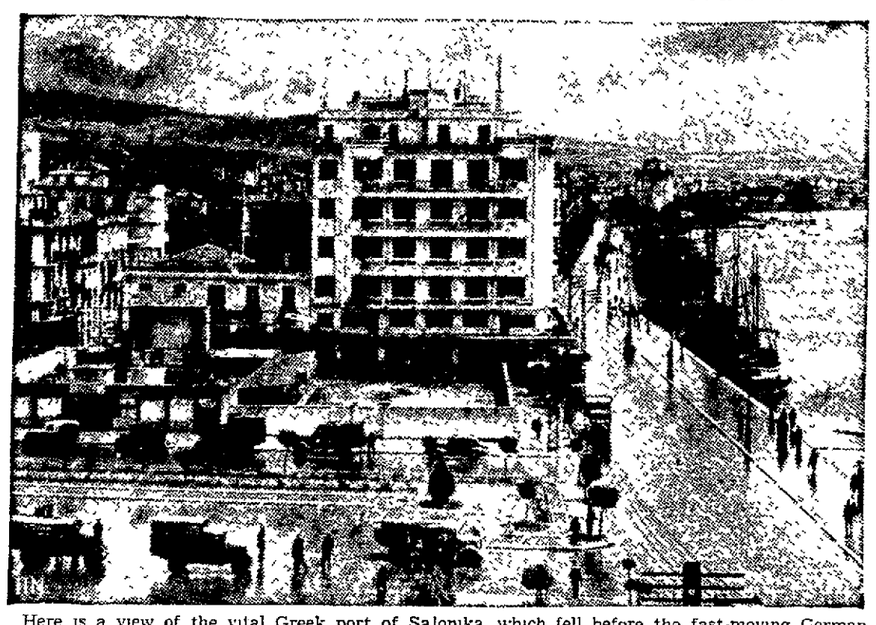
Salonika Falls Before German Attack



Here is a view of the vital Greek port of Salonika, which fell before the fast-moving German advance today, trapping part of the Greek army in the eastern part of the country. The white building in the picture is the Mediterranean Palace hotel. Greek strategy has admitted the possibility that Salonika might have to be abandoned, its defense being impossible. However, the capture of the city by the Nazis was a severe blow to the Allies.

Trapped East Wing of Greek Army Gives Up

British Forces Still Wait to Go Into Action as Germans Seize Nis, Cut Across Yugoslavia Towards Albania Frontier.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(UP)—Authorized German sources reported today that German troops have reached the Albanian border after smashing across Yugoslavia.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Italy has demanded the immediate recall of Capt. William Bentley, assistant American military attache and assistant military attache for air at Rome in retaliation for the American government's action in demanding the recall of Admiral Alberto Lais, the Italian naval attache in Washington, the state department announced today.

BULLETIN

ATHENS—(INS)—Thousands of hastily reinforced Greek "suicide battalions" were reported still holding out in Macedonia this afternoon, although Berlin announced and London conceded that Salonika had fallen.

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's blitzkrieg invaders captured the big port of Salonika today, after Greek troops had withdrawn, and the German high command said the trapped eastern wing of the Greek army had surrendered.

German army headquarters said the trapped Greeks—the east wing manning the Struma river line, cut off from communication with the rest of the Aegean kingdom by a lightning Nazi thrust—had asked for terms.

Simultaneously, the Rome and Berlin radios declared that the scheduled sailings of British transports in Piraeus, port of Athens, had been cancelled.

The radios said Greek military circles considered the order a precautionary measure for re-embarkation of British troops. This, presumably, would mean a "Balkan Dunkerque" for the British.

Hitler's high command, in announcing the fall of Salonika, said Nazi troops had broken through to Xanthe, on the Aegean coast, about 30 miles northwest of Kavalla.

In Yugoslavia, the German high command reported the capture of Nis, key railway town, midway between Belgrade and fallen Skoplje.

Other Nazi columns had knifed across Yugoslavia to within 31 miles of the Albanian frontier.

The Yugoslav high command, noting that "enormous losses" had been inflicted on the Germans, announced that Belgrade, the bomb-smashed Yugoslav capital which was declared an open city before the Nazi invasion, had been virtually destroyed . . . "its streets filled with the bodies of dead women, children and old men."

In Greece, powerful British forces were still waiting to go into action against the Nazi steamroller, amid considerable mystery as to their inactivity.

A British military spokesman in Athens, ignoring German invitations to "come out and fight," declared:

"We have no indication that our troops have yet established contact with the enemy, nor is there

Prospects Brighten For Ford Settlement

Officials Make Announcement After Night Negotiations; Final Try Made to Settle Coal Dispute.

(By Associated Press)

Prospects of settling a strike at the Ford Motor company's River Rouge plant were declared today to be brighter than on yesterday, following lengthy night negotiations.

Official word to that effect was given out early today after recessing of a conference attended by federal and state mediators, company officials, and leaders of the CIO United Automobile Workers who called the strike a week ago. Another conference was set for later today.

In like manner, another meeting of soft coal operators and CIO United Mine Workers representatives was called at New York in an effort to break a deadlock over a new working contract. Since the old contract expired March 31, approximately 400,000 miners have been idle.

Another top labor development was the action of Secretary of Labor Perkins in certifying to the national mediation board a two-day-old CIO strike at the Phelps-Dodge Copper Products corporation, Elizabeth, N. J.

Ford plants over the nation have $155,000,000 in defense contracts, and the shutdown of the River Rouge plant has affected, directly and indirectly, an estimated 200,000 workers. Phelps-Dodge holds $30,000,000 in national defense contracts and employs 1,800 persons.

Wages, hours and a union shop were at issue in the strike at Elizabeth, while the CIO members at the Ford plant demanded a contractual relationship between company and union, abolition of what they called a "company spy organization," and wage increases for some workers.

After Ford officials broke a company precedent by sitting down with union representatives yesterday to discuss the strikers'

Bits of wreckage were scattered over nearly a square mile. Two orange life rafts, one of them inflated, were found near the scene.

Nazis Say British Clash With Army Units In Iraq.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The German radio broadcast today what it termed a report from Baghdad that "fighting has broken out between British air units in Iraq and Iraq army units."

The broadcast, heard by NBC, added:

"The prime minister of Iraq issued a proclamation to the people of his country, outlining the aims of the new government as (1) keeping Iraq out of the war, (2) honoring international treaties, (3) development of closer relations with Arab and non-Arab nations."

Britain holds rights to air bases in Iraq, primarily for the defense of the Mosul oilfields.

MAYOR DUCKS OWN MEETING

Councilmen Answer Call To Special Session But Locke Fails To Show Up.

City council met in special session last night on the call of Mayor William J. Locke to consider an ordinance to add more policemen to the city force, but the mayor didn't appear and the police ordinance wasn't even mentioned.

The mayor was attending the dinner for National Legion Commander Milo J. Warner and appeared with him on the stage of the Madison theater later.

Howard Miller, council president, called the meeting to order and asked if any special legislation was ready for consideration, but no ordinance was introduced and no mention made of the shorter police week ordinance passed April 1, which prompted Mayor Locke to call the special meeting.

Mayor Locke requested the special meeting after receiving the shorter week ordinance providing every sixth day instead of eighth day off duty for policemen. The mayor vetoed a similar ordinance last year. He said he

Humphryes Labor Dispute Settled, Union Announces

An agreement was reached last night between Humphryes Manufacturing company officials and union leaders that will put the company's 400 employes back to work "not later than next Tuesday," Adam Leitenberger, president of Local 756, UERMW, said today.

Company officials, however, still declined to comment on the result of their negotiations with labor leaders, asserting only that none of the workers had returned to their jobs today.

Leitenberger said he understood a few of the maintenance employes would go back to their jobs this afternoon or tonight and others would return later.

He admitted that the union did not win its demands for a closed shop but added that "it won't exactly be an open shop either."

He said most of the 400 workers will receive pay increases ranging from five cents an hour

SEE DOUBLING OF INCOME TAX

Senators Also Predict Boost of Corporate Assessment to Pay For Defense.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Two members of the senate finance committee—George (D.-Ga.) and Taft (R.-O.)—agreed today that congress might have to double existing personal income taxes and hike the corporation rate to 30 per cent to help finance national defense and British aid expenditures

The basic individual income tax rate now is 4 per cent of net income above $2,000 for married persons and above $800 for single individuals. George, ranking member of the finance committee, suggested that the rate might have to be increased to 8 per cent.

The corporation rate is 24 per cent on companies with a net income of more than $25,000 annually. George said that if it were increased to 30 per cent and the personal rate were doubled the government would collect at least $1,000,000,000 additional each year

He added that the next tax measure would be designed to raise between $1,500,000,000 and $2,080,000,000 of new revenue. Funds might be raised by excise, excess profits, and other "special" levies, he said.

Taft expressed the view that

GRAVE: Churchill Tells Commons of Advance By Nazis

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Churchill told Britain today the grave extent of Germany's smashing advance through Greece today and warned Soviet Russia the Nazi drive was heading her way.

In a war report to the house of commons Churchill announced the Nazi troops had entered Salonika at 4 a. m.

"Up to the present the British and imperial troops have not been engaged" in the fighting in Greece, he said.

He refused to give any indication of what would be done with these troops in the "widespread battle."

The prime minister declared there were increasing signs that Germany would pounce on the wheatlands of Russia's Ukraine. He also announced the British capture of the Red sea port of Massawa, Eritrea, and the virtual completion of the conquest of Italian East Africa.

At the same time he disclosed that ten United States coast guard

SAVAGE: Nazi Bombers Make Fierce Assault on Coventry

(By United Press)

LONDON—German bombers made another savage attack last night on Coventry, a town already so devastated that its name has become synonymous with aerial blitzkrieg.

It was feared that there were many casualties and a communique said that damage to the town was "considerable." A school, hospital, homes, a police station, and a hotel were among the buildings bombed

Coventry has been mostly in ruins since the night of last Nov. 14, when great swarms of German planes made a concentrated, all-night attack on it killing or wounding more than 1,000 persons, 200 of whom were buried in one grave.

The attack on Coventry began about midnight. It continued briefly, lulled, then was followed by a savage raid directed at the business section. A number of fires broke out but all were controlled soon after the last raider left. It was the heaviest raid on the town in months.

Two towns on the south coast were bombed and a few persons were killed there. Bombs also were dropped on a town in southwest England.

Adopts 'Hands Off' Policy In Election Scrap at Ashland

Secretary of State John Sweeney said today he would let the Ashland county Democratic executive committee settle its own battle over a candidate for the county election board before he makes a move to appoint a replacement for James Hess of Polk, a member, who died recently.

"Sweeney said he had two endorsements from separate factions of the county committee but added that he was "in no hurry to name anyone."

Endorsements submitted to him include Joe C. Fensecert of Loudonville, named by a faction of the committee headed by Chairman Roe E. Wolfe, and Merle Yeater of Vermillion township. Yeater was nominated at a meeting called by himself as vice chairman of the county committee.

"This seems to be a party organization fight in the county and I have no desire to become involved in it unless it appears impossible for the groups to settle their differences," the secretary of state told The News-Journal today.

He said he had been asked by the [illegible] county executive

Let Nothing Stop U. S. Aid To Britain, Warner's Appeal

Urging Americans to take a realistic view of the war and the course this country must follow to maintain peace here, Milo J. Warner of Toledo, national commander of the American Legion, told an audience of about 800 last night at the Madison theater that "we must face the facts even if it makes us twinge and let nothing stop us from producing and delivering supplies to Great Britain."

Warner, third national Legion commander to speak in Mansfield in the 22 years of the Legion's history, returned last month from a tour of England and the other stricken countries of northern Europe.

Calling for a united nation in the production of defense materials for ourselves and Great Britain, Warner sharply criticized the strikes that are holding up production in defense industries.

"The Legion believes the fundamental rights of every American citizen should be preserved, including the right to strike, but it believes the need to strike should be eliminated," he said.

"At no time is there a right to riot," he asserted. "The Legion asks law and order. It should be as safe to walk in and out of factories as it is in front of the state house or national capital.

"We want to preserve our national honor and institutions at any cost. We are for an honorable peace, but some things are worse than war. We don't want war, but

"The Authority on Authorities"

COMBINE TWO COUPS

All of the special coups to pick up a trick with a fancy finish to a hand are rather pretty things, including the trump coups to gain position over a defender's guarded honor, the lead-throwing end-plays of various types and the squeezes. But the most gaudy of all are those rare ones which combine two or more of the special plays, one of them to be used if a defender makes one play or discard and another if he chooses a different course. It requires a keen minded declarer to keep several such possibilities in his clear consciousness at the same time.

	♠ A K 9 ♥ A 7 ♦ A Q 8 2 ♣ A J 8 3
♠ 7 6 4 2 ♥ K J 9 6 5 ♦ 6 ♣ K 10 9	W. N. E. S.	♠ J ♥ 10 8 4 3 ♦ 10 7 5 4 ♣ Q 7 5 4
	♠ Q 10 8 5 3 ♥ Q 2 ♦ K J 9 3 ♣ 6 2

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♥
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♣	Pass

After the diamond 6 was led, South saw a possible loser in hearts and one in clubs, one of which must be prevented, also the chance of one in spades. To head off the trump menace, she first led to the spade A, which dropped the J, ending that worry. She led three more spades then, watching East's discards, which were a club and two hearts, North tossing a diamond on the last one. Three more diamonds were then run, West tossing off three hearts, and finally the last spade was led.

West was in a spot. With three clubs and two hearts, the latter could not be discarded, so he had to choose a club. He saw that, if he picked the 9 or 10, declarer could take the dummy's club A and throw him in the lead with the K, so he would have to lead hearts. So he discarded his K, hoping East had the Q. North thereupon shed his heart 7 from dummy and East threw off a heart. So South then led to the club A and led the J, which East won. East had nothing left but the club 7 and heart 10, either of which would have to lead into the dummy's club 8 and heart A, so the combination squeeze and end-play worked to make the contract.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, April 10.
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

EVENTS of unprecedented and unpredictable importance, affecting the whole future life and its fortunes, are among the major predictions for this day, memorable for surprising and stirring adventures. These may be precipitated with whirlwind force and prove radical, novel and breath-taking. New matters of enterprising and constructive character may be launched under greatly stimulated creative forces. This in business, invention, science and adventure as well as in intellectual and artistic modes of expression. It is a time to attack such with might and main, although with some discretion.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of suddenly precipitated events, with things happening with lightning strokes if not entirely uprooting force. Radical in nature but constructive in the final issues, there may be change of environs, associations and interests. In a word expect the unexpected but keep vigilant as to fraud and misrepresentation. But take advantage of highly stimulated energies, quickened faculties, greatly accelerated emotions and adventurous or romantic urges.

A child born on this day may have many skills and faculties for expression in science, invention, literature, drama, with fine creative ability in almost any business or professional occupation.

Tomorrow's Problem.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Ronald himself supplied the answer to my question, when, as he had requested, I called him to carry down my suitcase.

"Will you promise me something, Aunt Madge?" he asked.

"That's a pretty large order Ronald," I parried.

"I know," he said, "but I'm sure you'll grant it. But first, tell me. Except to keep Dad and Mother from suspecting what's happened, Uncle Dicky doesn't really need me to go back with Carolyn tomorrow, does he?"

"No, he doesn't," I admitted, "but it would be much better all around if you could go."

"Oh! I'm going, all right," he said, "except for one possible contingency. Suppose that letter from Marion really is in code, and that when Mary deciphers it, she finds a clue to Marion's whereabouts, you'll start at once to find her, won't you?"

"That depends, Ronald," I said slowly, "on my father, and his decision will be based upon the contents of the letter. He may order us to go at once in search of her, he may tell us that a certain delay is necessary. But whatever he decides, there will be no appeal. Frankly, Ronald, if you are thinking of attempting to find Marion on your own account, I would not be justified in telling you anything Mary discovers, for you to use independently."

His face clouded, and I knew that from the minute he had been revolving in his brain. But I changed his opinion of Marion's reason for the inexplicable letter to him, schemes to rescue her had purposely had put an inexorable note into my voice, and his expression told me that he realized he must work under my father's direction or not at all.

"Would your father let me go along on any expedition to rescue Marion?" he asked eagerly.

"That I do not know, Ronald," I told him truthfully. "Father's one idea will be the success of the expedition. But I am sure of one thing. If he thinks you could be of help, he would be very glad to have you join him. But he will be the only judge of that."

"After all," he said with a touch of boyish bravado, "Marion wrote that letter to me. I let you read it, but I think I ought to have a promise to know the code translation, if I let you take it to Mary."

"Here is your letter, Ronald," I said. "I do not need it."

But he did not touch it. Instead his eyes were suddenly remorseful.

"I—I— didn't mean that," he said. "Of course you must take it to Mary. But what did you mean when you said you didn't need it. Oh!" his tone changed to one of chagrin— "I remember now about your phenomenal memory. You can repeat every syllable, even the misspelling of those words without the letter before you."

"Never mind that now Ronald," I said. "The important thing is that you are willing to cooperate with us fully. And won't you believe me when I tell you that if it be a possible thing, I shall see to it that you join in the search for Marion. But—I do not want you to leave Carolyn until she has gone far enough away from the house here, so that your father and mother do not suspect what you are doing. Uncle Dicky plans to start very early in the morning, and if it is necesary, he will drive you to a railroad station where you can get a morning train to New York. It is very unlikely that any plans will be put in operation before you reach the city."

"I'll be ready any minute you say," Ronald said eagerly, "but I must tell you, that if your father doesn't let me help him, I'm going out to find Marion independently!"

GETS RELEASE

Holmes County Woman Freed on Embezzlement Count.

MILLERSBURG — Mrs. Christena Bergoon will be released from Holmes county jail today, authorities said, and will return to her home near Glenmont to again live with her husband, Clay Bergoon, and their three children.

She has been in Holmes county jail the past few weeks having been returned from El Paso, Texas, by Sheriff Harry R. Weiss on a charge of embezzling funds from chattels of her husband at the time he was confined in a veterans' hospital while Mrs. Bergoon was acting as his guardian.

The court ordered her release after she signed over her interest in their farm and promised to pay court costs and costs of bringing her back from Texas.

PLAN SERVICES FOR HOLY WEEK

CRESTLINE — The annual three-hour union service on Good Friday will be held at the Methodist church from 12 noon to 3 p. m.

Rev. O. F. Hull, pastor of the host church, has arranged a program in which the seven last words of Christ will form the basis of sermons to be delivered by Rev. W. L. Margard of Calvary Reformed church, Rev. Simon A. Metzger of the English Lutheran church and Rev. Hull.

Since the Presbyterian congregation is without a pastor there will be no speaker representing them, but the congregation will join in the service.

A form program will be followed consisting of Scripture reading, prayer, hymns and special music by the choir and each period will open with a short organ prelude during which those who desire may enter or leave.

ASHLAND TO GET PARKING METERS ON MAIN STREET

Council Authorizes Purchase of 200 Devices, Votes Street Improvements.

ASHLAND — City council authorized the installation of approximately 200 parking meters, effective in 30 days at its meeting Monday night. They will be established on Main street from Union to Claremont; on the west side of Center street from Main street to Maple and on the east side from Main to the building occupied by the Moore bakery.

New allotments were considered and extensions of service lines voted for various streets in these new allotments. Improved surfacing was also voted for some of the newer streets.

The position of deputy engineer was created after the position of engineer's clerk had been abolished, due to the additional professional services necessary in the engineering departments of the sewage and garbage disposal plants.

Three claims for damages caused by rough streets were rejected at the city council meeting Monday night. The claims were filed by R. E. DeArmon, Charles Rowland and J. K. Wells, for damage to their tires and automobile. The claims committee recommended the claims be rejected and the council concurred.

HOLD MEETING

CRESTLINE—The Young Men's club met Monday night in their club rooms with Russell Fisher, the secretary, presiding.

He appointed Earl Fletcher, Edwin Weiss and Burrel Grim as a nominating committee for a new president to be elected at the next regular meeting.

The office of president was made vacant by the resignation of Ralph Muntis who is in military service.

Alfred Harris gave a report of the Young Men's conference held in Springfield and plans were discussed for a public card social but no action was taken.

Sport Podge by REX HESS

High school trackmen are beginning to see action in dual meets, and as a result coaches are finding out what their boys can do, and are finally getting around to sending their entries for the Mansfield Relays of April 19.

For more than a month a single entry from Madison high school formed the entire list of contestants officially lined up for Mansfield's biggest sport event of the year.

Relays Director Harry Mehock kept predicting a record entry list, but he wasn't too happy about the situation.

But the postman is ringing more than twice at Harry's door these days.

Cleveland Heights has entered eight boys in six events. Cleveland Collinwood crashed through with a full team entry, Akron Coventry has several boys lined up for the meet, and Plymouth also is entered.

Yesterday the first out-of-state entry was received from Meadville, Pa., sending 12 boys to the Relays.

"For a while," mused Mehock, "those Mansfield Relays were the Mansfield Delays. But not any more."

A bowling match of recent date pitted a team of high school boys against high school girls at Meder alleys.

Sophie Meder decided the handicaps for the tilt. The boys lost. But naturally!

Now they profess to be puzzled by the whole thing. It was a lesson in the handicap they can expect from now on. And not only in bowling.

From Adam Brandt, who wants more about the Cincy Reds and less of the Cleveland Indians, comes this note: "Your readers may not supply you with much to write about, but whatever you do write is read by 90 per cent of the women in town."

Brother, if you were only right, I'd claim a world's record. And would the circulation department be happy!

A recent check-up of the Windsor, Ontario, Daily Star estimated that of all the people reading that paper, 40 per cent of the men and 7 per cent of the women read the sport page column.

General interest in every item is the aim of every newspaper, but the Windsor figures show you how close they come.

* * *

Ninety per cent? That'd be 90-proof, wouldn't it, that this column had hit the top? Go away, Adam. Don't wake me. I can dream can't I?

BARONS HAPPY TO RETURN TO ARENA

HERSHEY, Pa. — (AP) — The Cleveland Barons probably are thankful to be back in their home town today on the shores of Lake Erie.

Their Hershey "jinx" kept them from winning the American Hockey league championship again last night. Hershey won, 4 to 3, to tie the best-of-five game final playoffs at two games apiece. The fifth and deciding game will be played at Cleveland tomorrow.

Not once has Cleveland beaten Hershey here this year.

Golf Loop Members Lay Plans

Postponed Matches Ruled Out By 'A' League.

PRELIMINARY steps toward another campaign of divot digging in the News-Journal A league were taken at a meeting last night of loop niblick wielders at Possum Run golf club.

The linksmen made a definite rule against postponed matches similar to that successfully tried in the B league last summer.

* * *

Golfers who know in advance they will be unable to play on league night may arrange to play their matches ahead of time, it was decided. Otherwise the matches will be forfeited.

In order to give the team losing the forfeited match a chance at the team aggregate point, a score has been established for each position.

Golfers present at last night's meeting were assigned names of "missing linksmen" to contact before the next meeting to be held next Tuesday night.

Teams will be drawn up at that time and assigned to sponsors who also will be contacted during the week.

* * *

Tomorrow night B league golfers and sponsors will meet at Possum Run at 7:30 to take similar action. Last year the B league was able to organize teams for the season's play in one meeting, and golfers and sponsors have been urged by President Adam Brandt to be present tomorrow night to avoid being lost in the shuffle of team assignments.

Buckeye Gridders Called In Draft

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Uncle Sam has entered the Ohio State football picture again.

Two more Buckeye gridders have been notified by their draft boards that they probably will be called for military service before they have a chance to wear their varsity uniforms next fall.

They are Ed Bruckner, junior guard from Sandusky, and junior Halfback George Zavistoske of Racine, Wis. Both players have been advised by Coach Paul Brown to quit spring football practice.

Bruckner is a letterman at the guard position and his probable loss makes the guard position acute since veteran Fritz Howard, Toledo, also is expected to be called by the army before next fall.

Emil Moldea, Akron, one of the brightest freshman prospects on the Buckeye squad, received notice last week that he will be drafted into the army immediately upon the conclusion of the current school year. Moldea has dropped from football and now is working out as a shotputter with the Buckeye track team.

Tribe Clinches Giant Series

Bagby Gets Chance at Starting Assignment

BLUEFIELD, W. Va. —(U.P.)— Jim Bagby Jr., gets another chance today to strengthen his bid for a berth as one of the Cleveland Indians' regular starting pitchers as he is scheduled to take the mound here against the New York Giants.

Harry Gumbert, one of the Giants' aces, will oppose Bagby.

The Indians clinched the current series between the two teams yesterday when they spotted the Giants eight runs and came through with an 11 to 8 triumph.

For six innings Hal Schumacher handed the Tribe blanks as the Giants built up an 8 to 0 advantage. The Indians got to Schumacher for two runs in the seventh to set the stage for a nine-run splurge in the eighth that won the contest.

The Indians collected only three hits in the wild eighth but were handed seven bases on balls as Schumacher and Johnny Wittig, who was rushed in to aid Schumacher, couldn't locate the plate.

Al Milnar was the victim of the Giants early hitting and was charged with the eight runs scored by the Terrymen. However, Milnar suddenly found his stuff in the fourth frame and retired 12 men in order before retiring at the end of the seventh.

* * *

Clint Brown and Ken Jungles worked the two final innings for the Indians.

Four Picked for Golfing Honors

CHICAGO —(AP)— Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen and Francis Ouimet are the first members of golf's newly-established hall of fame.

Creation of the hall of fame was announced yesterday by Tom Walsh, president of the Professional Golfers association, which will sponsor the building of a shrine for the game at Augusta, Ga. The idea follows closely the pattern of the baseball hall of fame at Cooperstown, N. Y.

The PGA hall of fame committee, composed of Grantland Rice, O. B. Keeler, Atlanta Journal; Kerr Petrie, New York Herald Tribune, and A. Linde Fowler, Boston Transcript, selected Jones, Hagen, Sarazen and Ouimet as the first members. Hereafter, sports writers of the nation will have complete and final jurisdiction on the persons selected, two each year.

The association has designated James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio and presidential candidate in 1920, as chairman of a committee to raise funds for the shrine at Augusta.

Galento Proves He's Done

Refuses To Answer Bell For Seventh Round.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Tony Galento waddled over the hill to the fistic poorhouse today.

The last shove came from the hammering fists of Buddy Baer who smashed Tony's flabby features into a crimson smudge last night and forced the roly-poly barkeep to call it quits after six rounds.

Referee Eddie La Fond proclaimed Buddy the winner on a seventh round technical knockout when Galento refused to answer the bell on grounds he broke his left hand in closing seconds of the previous heat.

Tony claimed the break was a recurrence of one he suffered in his previous ill-fated fight last summer with the elder member of the Baer boxing firm—Max. District of Columbia boxing commission physician Marvin McLean announced after a preliminary examination that he did not believe Galento's hand was fractured.

Tony goes to a hospital today for an x-ray examination. Boxing commission members declined to say whether Galento would face suspension if the x-rays show no fracture, but they held up the fight purse pending the examination.

In any case, Tony had the better part of six rounds to prove himself with two sound hands before he decided to sit out the remainder of the scheduled 10-rounder.

Ringsiders and most of the 9000 customers agreed by voice vote the only thing Galento proved was that he's all washed up as a big-time fighter.

* * *

Galento screamed after the fight that he's as good as ever and would take on Buddy again on a "winner take all" basis. But Buddy ignored him and set his sights on a mid-summer shot at Joe Louis' heavyweight crown.

PACE FALLS OFF IN ABC KEGLING JOUST

ST. PAUL—(INS)—The pace fell off at the American Bowling congress today as squads of low-average took command of the alleys. For the first time in several days, none of the leaders was threatened yesterday.

A return to action by "hot shots" is scheduled for tomorrow, with Mort Lindsey of Stamford, Conn., one of bowling's all-time greats, among those slated to appear. On Friday the Chicago Monarchs, 1940 five-man champions, will attempt to defend their title.

TRICH SAME BOOKED

BALTIMORE —(AP)— The New York Yankees, who don't go in for such innovations as night baseball, won't admit they've given in to one of Larry MacPhail's promotional ideas, but they found themselves listed for an unusual doubleheader today. The first game was the sixth of the spring season against the Brooklyn Dodgers and the second sent a picked squad of Dodgers and Yanks against the Baltimore Orioles.

SPORTS GOSSIP

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—Well it's just a week until the major league season opens, so let's get down to business and see what's going on. . . . Biss Terry finally decided Harry (The Horse) Danning wasn't an outfielder (which anyone could have told him after watching Hank misjudge flies). . . . But Bill still thinks so much of Danning as a catcher that he won't talk trade unless he's given his choice of any three players from the other club. . . . Joe McCarthy's troubles with the Yanks are different. . . . He has 14 good pitchers in camp, and he can't give them all enough work to decide which ones he will drop.

Tis spring, and soon the baseball season
Will have us in the bleachers, freezin',
And ere we're baked by summer's sun

If Medwick hits, and young Pete Resier,
And Mungo keeps out of the sneezer,
This year should then be a real hummer
Unless "Dem Dodger Bums" get bummer.

Jimmy Johnston, Abe Simon's manager, claims Abe really thinks he's going to be the next heavyweight champion. "And I'm not going to tell him different," adds J. J. J. . . . Tom Gahagan, the veteran trotting scribe, likes Bill Strang's His Excellency as a Hambletonian candidate. . . . Ray Dumont, who believes even the umpires should be seen as well as heard at his national semi-pro baseball tournament, will have his arbiters dressed in white from head to foot this year. . . . And, in the preliminary tourneys, they'll wear four-inch red, white and blue emblems on their sleeves. . . . Sorry to hear that Travis Jackson, the former Giants' infielder, is a patient at a sanatorium near Shreveport, La.

NEWSOM SHELLED

GREENVILLE, S. C. — (AP) — Even as muscular a South Carolinian as Buck Newsom couldn't save the Detroit Tigers from their sixth straight defeat by the Washington Senators. Buck was shelled hard yesterday at Charlotte, N. C., while Steve Sundra, Washington's recent acquisition from the Yankees, fogged his fast one past the Tigers.

Squat Tony Gives Joe Trouble

Musto's Still on Feet When Bout Stopped.

ST. LOUIS —(AP)— They grow tougher by the month for Bomber Joe Louis.

In the midst of a "victim a month" campaign among hangers-on in the heavyweight division, Louis ran into tough Tony Musto of Chicago last night and went into the ninth round before his devastating attack finally caused Referee Arthur Donovan to halt the slaughter.

But the cheers of 17,456 spectators were all for Musto, a comparative unknown, who absorbed a terrific beating and asked no quarter. No matter how often Louis smashed his open target he was unable to score a knockout.

Donovan finally ended the bout after one minute, 36 seconds of the ninth round, when Musto, battered and bleeding, was unable to see the champion.

Like huge Abe Simon, who stayed on his feet long after the experts had expected him to fold up, Musto still was forcing Louis at the end.

It was the fifth successful defense of the championship in as many months for Louis and he goes after another one in May against Simon. Either Billy Conn or Lou Nova will get a shot at the bomber in June.

In all, Louis has defended his title 16 times since he won it by knocking out James J. Braddock in June, 1937.

Although the outcome was a foregone conclusion, Promoters Mike Jacobs and Tom Packs reported a total of 17,456 paid $52,-993 at the gate—a record boxing crowd for St. Louis.

Joe had the fight all his own way except for a few moments when Musto, by sheer bullishness, managed to break through and land telling blows. Louis received a nick or two on the face and his nose was bleeding slightly at the end but otherwise, he was unhurt.

Tony didn't want to quit when Donovan queried him between the eighth and ninth rounds. So out he came for the last chance and Louis showed no mercy.

* * *

"He was," Joe admitted, "a tough boy."

Red Hill Strength Lauded

Cincinnati Picked To Win Pennant Again.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Pitching wins pennants—especially National League pennants—and that's why the Cincinnati Reds will hold the winning ticket again.

The Reds have the best pitching staff in baseball with three potential 20-game winners in Paul Derringer, Bucky Walters and Gene Thompson. They won 58 games between them last year and can be reasonably expected to equal or surpass that total this season.

Although the Reds are the current World's champions, they have never been called a great team as ball clubs go. But they are a sound, solid team without a vital weakness. They lack power but they don't need terrific punch because they don't waste runs. They have the kind of pitching and defense that can operate on a one, two or three run margin all day long. They won 41 games by a 1-run margin last season. No lucky ball club can do that. There is every reason to believe that the Reds will continue to win those close, tight ones right down the line in 1941.

The Reds aren't going to breeze to the pennant. They are going to get stiff opposition from two and maybe more quarters. The Cardinals must be reckoned with. Billy Southworth has put together a hustling, running ball club with more punch than possibly any other club. If the Cards' infield of Mize, Crespi, Marion and Brown holds up, St. Louis is likely to furnish the Reds' chief opposition.

If the Reds folded, the Dodgers could win the pennant if everything clicked. The odds, however, seem against it. The Dodgers have too many question marks—young Pete Reiser in center, second base, the pitching staff beyond Wyatt and Higbe, and Joe Medwick's comeback. The logical move to tighten up the infield seems to be for Manager Leo Durocher to play second base but thus far he has brushed off Larry MacPhail's attempts to bring about this shift. In addition, this club's harmony doesn't appear to be of championship class.

SELLING SLOWS BUT LOSSES GO ON IN MARKET

Bonds Yield as Reports Hint Interruptions From Coal Shutdown.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Selling in stocks diminished today but further losses of fractions to more than a point were in the majority as allied reverses in the Balkans continued to trouble the market.

Lower were such prominent issues as U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, Anaconda, General Motors, Pennsylvania, Standard Oil of New Jersey, U. S. Rubber and Union Carbide.

Corporate bonds mostly yielded for additional loses. Commodities were uneven.

Business reports showed some interruption of activity from strikes. The soft coal shutdown was held largely responsible for a sharp drop last week in rail loadings.

Electric power consumption however, held near peak levels, indicating over-all business was swinging along at record-breaking pace of recent weeks.

Easter shopping was expected to roll up the biggest spring retail trade since 1929, at least.

SALONIKA FALLS AS EAST GREEK ARMY GIVES UP

British Troops Idle as Nazis Knife Across Yugoslavia Towards Albania.

any indication when that contact will be effected."

The British were said to be holding a second defense line southwest of Salonika.

As the four-day-old battle of the Balkans rapidly assumed the aspect of an Allied debacle, a Nazi spokesman in Berlin declared that the state of Serbia, in southern Yugoslavia, was already "tottering."

More than 20,000 Yugoslav prisoners, including several generals, were reported captured.

Greek troops were said to have withdrawn from Salonika before the Germans arrived.

Berlin reported that Nazi blitz forces had stabbed more than half way through the "waist" of Yugoslavia, and a Yugoslav general headquarters communique, issued in Athens, admitted the abandonment of the key rail city of Skoplje, at the head of the Vardar river valley, on the Belgrade-Salonika railway.

Skoplje is 55 miles from the Bulgarian frontier, where Hitler started his panzer divisions rolling Sunday.

Plunging down the Vardar valley, the swift-striking Germans in effect duplicated the historic Nazi break-through at Sedan on the western front last May—a coup which split the Allied armies, led to the rout in Flanders, the withdrawal from Dunkerque and the fall of France a month later.

All was not totally lost yet, however, for the Yugoslavs, Greeks and British. Strong British forces—estimated to number as high as 300,000 troops—were reported drawn up on a second line of defense southwest of Salonika, and a major battle between the British and Germans appeared near. London said the British ground forces had not yet gone into action in the Balkans.

Cut off from western Greece, hard-fighting Greek garrisons of the Struma valley forts were reported still holding out grimly... retaking a fort, capturing Nazi parachutists and smashing repeated German tank assaults.

To the northeast, Premier Mussolini's high command reported that Fascist troops had entered the town of Kranj, Yugoslavia, 10 miles from the Italian border, and that Italian armies in northern Albania had launched an offensive into Yugoslavia to meet Nazi panzer divisions driving through from Bulgaria.

Stefani, official Italian news agency, said the offensive was "developing powerfully today."

In Athens, the Greeks said the Germans' lightning thrust to Salonika had been made possible by the retreat of the Yugoslav right wing, exposing the Allies' "Achilles heel" in the so-called "hot corner" of the Balkan conflict—the bloody angle of Greece, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria — between the Struma and Vardar river valleys.

A Yugoslav communique said that Slav troops, after abandoning Skoplje to the Germans, were now fighting bitterly in the mountains northwest of the town to prevent the invaders from cutting Yugoslavia in two.

Hitler's high command acknowledged that the break through Greece's Metaxas line—a modern fortifications system built by the late Premier Gen. John Metaxas—had been effected only "after an embittered struggle."

A Nazi spokesman paid tribute to the Greeks' courageous stand but declared: 'The British still won't come out and fight."

The German high command said Nazi Field Marshal General List's fast troops striking from Bulgaria had advanced more than 60 miles into Yugoslavia, crossing the Vardar river, and "thus Yugoslav and Greek-English forces have been separated."

Report Bulgarians Aid Nazi Attack

LONDON —(INS)— Bulgarian troops participated in the German attack on Yugoslavia, a Reuters (British) dispatch from Ankara, capital of Turkey, charged today.

The dispatch gave authoritative quarters in Ankara as the source of its information.

(Editor's Note: In a speech before the Bulgarian chamber of deputies, Premier Bogdan Filoff denied that Bulgarian troops were participating in the Balkan conflict.)

British Say Troops Haven't Made Contact

ATHENS—(AP)—A British military spokesman said today "we have no indication that our troops have yet established contact with the enemy nor is there any indication when that contact will be affected."

(Stefani, official Italian news agency, declared in Rome that the Germans operating in Thrace had broken through Australian and New Zealand troops in the Struma valley. One German column was advancing on Port Kavala, the agency said.

(In Berlin, however, a spokesman said the Germans had failed to find any British in their path.)

"Germany," the British spokesman said, "had her usual opportunity of taking the initiative and, by choosing her time, naturally got a flying start.

"The situation looks rather dark at the moment and will continue to look so until the position is clarified. But the situation also has its good sides."

It was still questionable how far the Germans would be able to maintain their flying start, the spokesman said. He added that Germany evidently had taken action before she was really ready.

Humphryes Labor Dispute Settled, Union Announces to 37½ per cent and that workers with a year or more of service would have a week's vacation with pay.

He also said the agreement provided that workers who are "unable to make good at piece work will get a chance at regular hourly pay."

The company's workers left their jobs eight days ago in what they described as a "work holiday."

CHURCHILL TELLS OF NAZI GAINS

Reports to Commons on Fall of Salonika; Declares Russia's Next.

cutters have been turned over to Britain for the battle of the Atlantic and soon would be operating against German submarines.

He appealed anew for use of Irish ports and airfields to guard Britain's northwestern approaches, and told France she would be strictly blockaded and that British guns would resist any attempt on the part of the Vichy government to transfer the French navy from Africa to metropolitan France where Hitler could get it.

He admitted that "heavy losses" to German planes, submarines and cruisers would cripple British merchant marine disastrously without the "gigantic United States building program" which would give Britain "several million tons" of shipping next year.

He also reported that the British airforce had grown to such an extent that some of the raids on Germany had "exceeded in severity" anything the Germans had done in any single raid on England.

Churchill said that before the battle of Greece Gen. Sir John G. Dill, Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell and Greek General Alexandros Papagos advised their governments that "a sound military plan giving a good prospect of success could be made."

He added "it remains to be seen how well these opposing risks and duties have been adjudged, but I am sure there is no less likely way of winning the war than to adhere pedantically to the maxim of safety first."

He forecast "hard and severe fighting" against the German armored column in North Africa and revealed that the capture of Keren in Eritrea cost Britain 4,000 casualties.

Churchill shocked the chamber into complete silence with his announcement of the German entry into Salonika. He drew cheer after cheer with disclosure of the capture of Massawa and increasing United States aid.

BODY FOUND IN RIVER

ZANESVILLE —(AP)— Missing since March 13, the body of Clifford Kramer, 43, was found floating in the Licking river last night. He was the brother of Clinton Kramer, state commander of Disabled American Veterans.

Nazis Use Parachutists Again

German parachute troops, such as those pictured above, together with armored divisions, are reported to have broken through to the Aegean sea in western Thrace to split Greece from her potential ally, Turkey. The troops were dropped behind Greek lines. Counter-attacking Greek units were said to have captured many parachutists.

MAYOR DUCKS OWN MEETING

Councilmen Answer Call To Special Session But Locke Fails To Show Up.

would suggested that council provide four additional policemen with their salaries paid from the parking meter fund.

The mayor has until Friday to veto the ordinance. After that date, it would become active without his signature. He could not be reached for comment on last night's meeting.

The mayor's statement drew a retort from Fred Miller, finance committee chairman, who said his committee would prevent "any pressure group or political intrigue" from loosening the city's purse strings.

Councilman Jacob Kutschall who had introduced the police short-week ordinance, last night said he had heard of the mayor's charges and that he had had no intention of "embarrassing the administration" when he sponsored the ordinance.

If an ordinance for hiring additional policemen has been drawn up by City Solicitor M. D. Ward, jr., it must have been done last week before the mayor indicated there would be a special meeting. Ward left the city over the week-end for a vacation trip in Georgia.

Council passed an ordinance calling for the appropriation of $18,000 for the construction of waterlines for several new streets in the city. The appropriation will pay for the purchase of materials and labor to construct the lines on Central avenue, Barnard avenue, Coleman road, Fairlawn avenue, Linden road, Marlow road, Overlook road, Park avenue west, Parkview street, Sloan avenue, Paxford place, Rembrandt street and Yale avenue.

Lone dissenter to the ordinance was Councilman George Kyle of the Third Ward. When informed that only four-inch lines were planned, Kyle reminded council that underwriters had recommended at least six-inch pipe to meet future fire needs.

The only other acts of council were the extension of the salary of the parking meter collector until June 30 and the approval of a petition from property owners on Wood street asking that the street be graded for 50 instead of 60 foot width as previously planned.

HUNT FORGER

Police Search For Man on Worthless Check Charge.

Police are looking for a colored man who forged several checks in Mansfield Tuesday. Calling three soft drink and beer companies by telephone the man placed orders for the residence of Dr. H. F. Mills, 135 East Second street.

According to reports received from the complainants, the Royal Crown company, Waldorf Beer, Inc., and National Beer company, the man then appeared at the respective offices of the three with checks supposedly made out to and endorsed by Dr. Mills.

The checks, signed by "Dr. Dave Talbert," were larger than the amounts required to pay for the beverages and the change given in return was pocketed by the forger, according to police records. Checks held by the police total $47.

U. S. RELEASES 10 MORE SHIPS

Coast Guard Cutters Will Be Transferred to Britain to Aid Supply Line.

Admiral Emory S. Land, U. S. N. retired, compared German submarine attacks on British shipping to a bonfire and said Americans should ask themselves whether they could not "give greater help by aiding the British to put out the fire than by concentrating our efforts on feeding it with fuel."

Britain's losses "are now occurring at a rate close to 5,000,000 tons a year," he said, adding: "It is obvious that large as the British merchant marine was before the war, it cannot long withstand such losses." Moreover, he declared, America and Britain together cannot furnish adequate replacements.

Land, President Roosevelt's key man in shipping phases of the defense program, spoke over the radio last night. Earlier in the day Mr. Roosevelt had disclosed planes to add 39 seized Danish ships, totaling approximately 135,000 tons, to the American merchant marine.

The president will ask congress tomorrow for funds to purchase the vessels, which probably will be turned over to Britain.

The chief executive also indicated the United States might declare forfeited and take possession of 28 Italian and two German ships put under protective custody by the coast guard after their crews attempted sabotage. Mr. Roosevelt said the ships were subject to forfeiture.

While the Danish vessels are expected to go into the "bridge of ships" which President Roosevelt promised Britain for transporting American war supplies, the Axis ships, if forfeited, would go into the American merchant fleet. The president said they could be handed over to some other country only if the United States were at war with Germany and Italy.

grievances. Secretary Perkins delayed certifying the motor controversy to the national mediation board. CIO President Philip Murray participated in the conference, as did Harry H. Bennett, Ford personnel director, and other officials of the firm.

In New York, John R. Steelman, director of the United States conciliation service, declared there was a "substantial agreement" on a new soft coal mining contract, but that "desperate" efforts were being made to obtain an industry-wide accord.

Chief stumbling block was the reported refusal of southern operators to eliminate a sectional wage differential under which southern miners earn 40 cents a day less than miners in the north. The union want a flat $7 a day wage scale, which would mean a boost of $1.40 in southern fields and $1 in the north.

A change of shifts last night signalled the end of a 13-hour work slowdown at the Aluminum Company of America sand foundry at Cleveland. The company called it a "sit-down strike;" a CIO die casters union organizer accused the firm of "stalling" over rehiring a discharged worker and over wage demands. There was no immediate comment from either side on the resumption of normal operations.

The CIO national association of die casting workers also attracted attention at Washington, by launching an attack on a government order establishing priorities for scrap aluminum. The union declared that more than a million workers in various trades would be thrown out of employment by the order, because many small businesses "won't have capital to re-tool their plants for the use of substitutes, or because there are no supbstitutes for die castings." The priority order is scheduled to become affective Friday.

Taft predicted expenditures during the fiscal year beginning July 1 would approximate $25,000,000,000. "It is my curbstone opinion that the chairman was elected for two years and he has a right to serve out his term," Sweeney said.

He added, however, that he planned to go into the statutes later today and give the committee an official ruling on the ouster proceedings.

A majority of the committee demanded Wolfe's ouster as chairman last Saturday night, it was understood. The majority group also recommended Yeater for the election board post.

It is customary for the secretary and chairman of the county executive committee to sign the recomendation before it goes to the secretary of state. Charles Reeb, secretary of the comittee, is said to favor the appointment of Yeater, disagreeing with Chairman Wolfe.

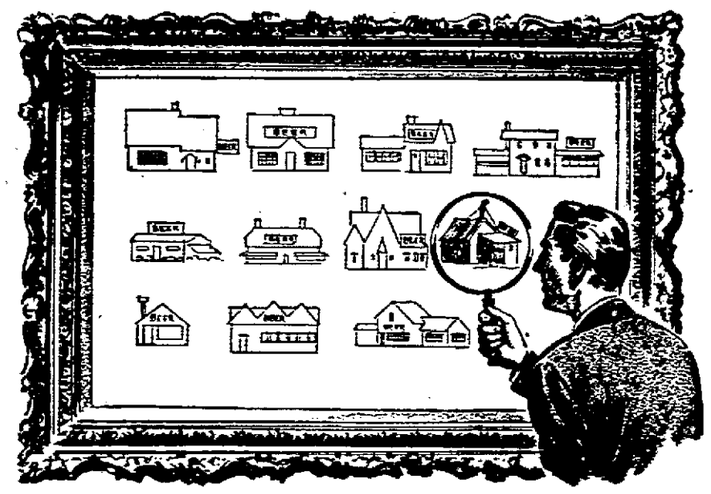
THE RECORD .... Facts That Concern You — No. 26 of a Series



ARE YOU SEEING ONLY PART OF THE PICTURE?

The great majority of beer retail establishments are clean wholesome places.

Yet it is the once-in-a-while exception—the anti-social, law-violating tavern that everybody notices.

Such undesirable retailers give beer a bad name it doesn't deserve. Furthermore, by arousing public indignation, retailing abuses endanger your right to enjoy good beer, the beverage of moderation. They also endanger the benefits that beer has brought to Ohio — 50,195 persons employed since re-legalization, an annual payroll of $46,441,543 and $10,717,714.00 taxes paid last year.

While it is the brewers' responsibility to brew good beer and the retailers' responsibility to sell it under wholesome conditions, nevertheless the brewing industry wants anti-social retailing eliminated entirely.

You can help us by (1) patronizing only the legal and reputable places where beer is sold and (2) by reporting any law violations you may observe to the duly constituted law enforcement authorities.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 9, 1941.

And then again, the spring fever influence may be conducive to strikes.

There's just a chance that next year's income tax will be adjusted to disclose the identity of the Forgotten Man.

Joe Louis has introduced a new element into the heavyweight championship—the idea of a monthly payday for himself.

Communism, In Theory and Practice

TWO CLASSES of Communists were described by a witness named Farrell Schnering, formerly a member of the party, in his testimony at the Harry Bridges trial in San Francisco.

The first group ranges, he says, "from youngsters more interested in playing baseball than in the class struggle, to second-rate intellectuals, broken-down school teachers, writers who couldn't find publishers, and older women."

But back of all the varied "fronts" of the red web, said Schnering, is the Communist party itself, to whom "truth is no issue."

"We did not hesitate to send instructed witnesses to the court," he admitted. "There is no compunction about lying at all. It is the policy of the Communist party to make false statements under oath."

Communism, as a theory, has always had, and may still have, a legitimate interest for intelligent people. It has been discussed and advocated in many ages and lands. But certainly in all the systems of legitimate Communism there was never anything like the hideous and destructive doctrine being preached today, without honor, faith or morals, apparently seeking only to break down the modern way of life from sheer hatred of civilization.

Housing Shortage Becomes Acute

THE PRESENT serious housing situation could be played up by pleased dictators as an example of the inefficiency of democracies. It is certainly an example of past indifference, or lack of foresight. Housing needs have been under discussion for years, and sporadic efforts have been made to view the problem as a whole, but little has actually been done.

Lack of dwellings is not confined to any section of the country. It exists in communities where defense industry is speeding up, in areas where new munitions plants are being built, in cities near army camps, and so on. Federal low-cost housing developments of the last few years appear to be merely a drop in the bucket of total needs.

From Connecticut to Oregon comes the cry for suitable homes for workers in all sorts of vital industries. The threat to health, efficiency and morals is present now and very grave. There must be quick thinking, quick acting, wise and foresighted planning, wholehearted co-operation between private building interests and government, local and national.

It's a big opportunity to prove that a democracy is not helpless in the face of emergency and human need.

Progress In Railroad Shipping

APRIL is "perfect shipping month," observed by American railroads to improve shipping conditions and also to call attention to the degree of safety already attained in transporting goods. Although perfection has not actually been reached, freight handling has become much better in recent years.

One factor in the improvement is said to be a device which records every severe jolt in transit. It was invented by a railroad agent who grew tired of the numerous complaints of shippers that their goods had been damaged. The device makes it possible to tell what crew was on duty when the damage occurred.

Some crews don't like this tell-tale object and call it "the bug." Others who appreciate its general usefulness call it the "silent watchman."

But the "bug" and its inventor probably do not deserve all the credit for safe shipping by rail. Greater carefulness in packing and handling, improved equipment and more accurate weather forecasts, all contribute something toward the goal of "perfect shipping."

Innocent Autos Wrongly Accused

EVERY once in awhile the unfair charge is made that a perfectly innocent automobile "broke away from its parking place" and ran down the street, usually causing property damage and occasionally injuring someone.

Mansfield's many sloping streets makes this a particularly vulnerable city for such automotive misbehavior, but a careful analysis of these occurrences discloses that in each instance the front wheels WERE NOT TURNED TOWARD THE CURB, as is always done by careful motorists when they park on a slope.

And, as a suggestion, you'd better not park on a slope just in front of a car that is in a "runaway" position. It might decide to "break away" and damage your car.

Grasshoppers as Public Enemies

PIONEER SETTLERS of the western plains never knew in advance when a disaster was going to fall upon them in the form of locust or grasshopper swarms. Today government experts know pretty well what is to be expected in this line, and they warn farmers. They are able to do something about it, not enough to eliminate the pests but enough to hold down the amount of damage.

It is pleasant to learn that grasshoppers during the coming summer will not be so serious a pest as they have been for the last three years. Field surveys made by the department of agiculture entomologists indicate that the hoppers will be fewer in numbers and less widespread in area.

There remain regions where the grasshopper attack will be severe. The experts have a partial remedy to apply. More than 45,000 tons of arsenic-poisoned bran sawdust bait will be used to hold back the destroying hordes in the areas where they are concentrated.

And what of the grasshoppers' natural enemies? Has nature's balance been upset in that respect, and could it be restored without encouraging a new pest?

TOO MANY BROTHS MAY SPOIL THE COOK

Why Strikes Disturb Congress

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

ALTHOUGH Chairman Hatton W. Sumners of the house of representatives' judiciary committee was enthusiastically cheered by his fellow lawmakers a few days ago when he suggested the electric chair for "enemies of this nation," since he made his remark I've noticed a considerable undercurrent of comment on Capitol Hill indicating that a good many legislators wish he hadn't expressed himself quite as he did.

Not that there's much objection to the death penalty for treason, as defined by the constitution.

However, Congressman Sumners made his speech as a climax to a representatorial discussion of labor tieups in defense industries, and as a considerable number of his associates interpreted him, due to the sequence, he meant to classify strikers as traitors.

Critics generally admit that this may be a justifiable classification as to Communists, Nazis, Fascists, fifth columnists, fellow travelers, intentional saboteurs and racketeers, but there are doubters that there are as many of these folk in American labor's ranks as authorities like Congressman Martin Dies, chief investigator of un-American activities, say there are. Such doubters don't think that an honest striker for higher pay, shorter hours, better working conditions or even the closed shop necessarily is a traitor. Their contention is that a speech of the sort made by Congressman Sumners is calculated to antagonize workers, aggravating an already tense situation.

Congressman Sumners hails from Texas, largely an agricultural and pastoral state, and huge stacks of mail and telegrams received by senators and representatives from rural constituencies suggest an overwhelming anti-strike sentiment on the farmers' and herdsmen's part.

Middle West View.

The farming middle west (particularly the Dakotas, Wyoming, Nebraska and Kansas) were mostly against the lease-lend bill, but after it had passed, the area in question flopped over in favor of the seven-billion-dollar appropriation to implement it financially and wants Uncle Sam to hustle his defense and aid-to-the-democracies program, on the theory that maybe it WILL keep us out of war.

Consequently the average farmer also wants industrial labor on the job everlastingly.

Furthermore, he can't see why an urban worker is dissatisfied with the pay he's getting. A skilled mechanic, for instance, has a materially larger income than the vast majority of farmers.

It's an attitude that isn't entirely confined to farmers.

It includes employerdom, lots of businessmen who aren't employers of much consequence, and a big contingent of unionized white collar workers. Even if they don't feel higher prices yet, they foresee 'em, with no prospect of larger returns into their cash drawers or in the form of paychecks. Strikes fret them, too, and they write and telegraph.

Urge Soft Pedal.

Incidentally there are some first-rate laborite members of congress who urge the soft-pedaling of strikes as decidedly as possible.

They're afraid that an epidemic of 'em will lead to the cancellation of nearly all the pro-labor legislation enacted in earlier New Deal days, and are earnestly counseling moderation by A. F. of L. and C. I. O. leaderships.

Above everything, they deprecate jurisdictional strikes, between rival unions.

If an employing company and its workers deadlock, it's a muss that probably can be mediated or conciliated or otherwise adjusted. An inter-union fight, though, is mighty hard to compromise, and it's a thing that pro-labor legislators don't believe the public is likely to tolerate patiently.

'Blue'?-- Don't Think

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DON'T TRY to think when you're blue or bewildered. Don't try to size up a situation or make a program. Above all, don't make decisions. For nothing that you think, say or do when you're in the dumps is reliable. And the reason's plain—

Thought doesn't just happen. It's a definite product. As much a product as the power in your automobile. You wouldn't expect to get full power out of a damaged motor, would you? It's equally impossible to get rational reactions from a demoralized thought machine.

We don't know much about our thought-machines yet, but we have made one important discovery. We now know that we THINK WITH OUR WHOLE BODIES instead of merely with the brain. The glands of our bodies—scores of them, little and big—are as necessary in the construction of thought as the gray matter within our skulls. These glands produce, and pour into the blood stream, the mysterious essences ("harmones") which make emotion, color thought, largely determine the trend of personality.

Robert Browning had a fine forehead. But two fatty lumps, astride his kidneys, probably had far more to do with his famous poems than that majestic expanse of forehead. "Master Minds" is an imposing title but it would be nearer the truth to refer to these super-humans as 'Master Parathroids."

"But what has all this to do with my not thinking when I'm blue?" you ask.

Plenty! Your glands are the reason why you're blue. You're not sunk because you had a row with your wife over the grocery bill. You're sunk because that row did something to your adrenal glands which, in turn, proceeded to raise cain with your internal combustion. The blues aren't merely a depressed mood—they are the certain symptom of a chemical kick-up. And while that kick-up continues you can't possibly think or act normally.

So what?

So get away from yourself: Don't try to think—don't permit yourself to act. Do something that will make you forget yourself and your problem temporarily.

"Yes, that sounds fine!" you retort peevishly. 'Lovely advice for millionaires who can go off to Florida when they're low. But how about us poor people who have to stick on the job no matter how we feel? You can't 'get away from yourself' when you're in a jam like that."

Yes, you can—and you've done it many a time. Barring a really desperate situation, which entirely wrecks your control, there's no blue mood you can't lick by the use of spunk and sense.

It isn't "going off to Florida" that cures the millionaire's blues. It's doing something, seeing something that TAKES HIS MIND ENTIRELY OFF HIMSELF. But he could have done that—and so can you—quite as well without ever leaving his home or office. How? In multitudes of ways, depending on your own taste and leisure.

Play a game of solitaire. Trim a hat. Try to write a story. Bake a new kind of cake. Borrow some of little Jimmy's toys. One of those slick little things that come with directions for whittling and painting—a bombing plane, covered wagon, or old caravel. Or one of those mechanical building sets. Me? When I'm feeling completely washed up—I dress a doll! Laugh that off if you want! What does it matter, so long as it turns the trick?

AND THESE SEEMINGLY SIMPLE, FOOLISH EXPEDIENTS DO TURN THE TRICK. They turn the trick by relieving bewildered brain and glands from pressure and holding your whole system steady until it can return to normal.

For you can't whittle the wheels for a bombing plane—or roll the seams on a diminutive negligee—and think of your troubles at the same time. Willy-nilly, the slow, precise hand-work makes you forget Exhibit A.

And self-forgetfulness is the only medicine needed for just about ninety-nine and ninety-nine one hundredths per cent of your ailments!

Secretary Perkins Panned Again, Strong Demand for Replacement

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Inner circle clamor for replacement of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins is an old story, but it's hotter now than ever before.

Actually, Roosevelt did move last year to get a new labor secretary, offering the post to Mayor LaGuardia. But he declined, insisting on the war department or nothing.

Now, with labor a key problem, White House advisers are urging that the president renew the offer to LaGuardia and, appealing to his patriotism, refuse to take No for an answer. With his liberal record, long public experience, and dynamic ability, it is argued that LaGuardia is a natural for the labor portfolio.

Another high-calibered New Dealer proposed as alternative choice is Solicitor General Francis Biddle. Besides being one of the ablest executives in the administration, the ex-Philadelphia judge also has had extensive labor experience as chairman of the old National Labor Board.

Perkins Panned.

THERE was some plain talking on the labor situation at last Friday's cabinet meeting, and it was aimed squarely at Miss Perkins.

She was criticized sharply for the delay in certifying the protracted Allis-Chalmers strike to the National Defense Mediation Board until rioting broke out, also the coal negotiations before they deadlocked and John L. Lewis shut down the mines. Both the president and other cabinet members bluntly called Miss Perkins' attention to the fact that the purpose of the board was not only to settle strikes but to avert them.

With some feeling it was demanded of her why the board, set up expressly to handle "hot potatoes," was not used in these two major cases. The view was expressed that much of the criticism now being showered on the president was caused by failure to make effective use of the Mediation Board. Roosevelt was getting the blame for Miss Perkins' bungling.

The 324 to 1 vote by the house of representatives for a sweeping probe of defense labor problems was also thrown in Miss Perkins' face.

Miss Perkins, noted for her loquacity at cabinet sessions, made a long defense of herself. She claimed that John R. Steelman, chief of the conciliation service, had told her he thought he could settle the Allis-Chalmers strike, and that Lewis had told Steelman he would not stand for turning the coal negotiations over to the Mediation Board.

Anti-Steelman.

STEELMAN also came in for some sharp discussion at the cabinet meeting. One shot was to the effect that he seemed to be more interested in playing personal politics with AFL and CIO moguls than in averting labor blowups.

The one-time Alabama sociology professor has been criticized on this score in the inner circle for some time. It is charged that Steelman has loaded his staff with AFL and CIO men and built up such a powerful lobbying machine that he, not Miss Perkins, actually is running the labor department.

His influence is graphically shown in the Allis-Chalmers and coal cases. Defense and administration chiefs strongly urged prompt action in both, but Steelman was able to overrule them—until, in the Allis-Chalmers case, they went over Miss Perkins' head and she was ordered to call in the Mediation Board.

Bachelor Martin.

IN BEING persuaded to remain as Republican national chairman, Joe Martin was willing to let the party leaders regulate his public life—but not his private life.

At the meeting which decided his continuance in office, the party chiefs also discussed a proposal to set up committees to study special political and economic problems. Mrs. Lindsay Patterson, national committeewoman from North Carolina, asked to be named chairman of a "matrimonial committee to get Joe Martin a wife."

Turning a beet-red, bachelor Joe demurred. He said: "I have too many other responsibilities."

Dark Italian Embassy.

WASHINGTON society in recent weeks seldom has been more hectic and more gay. But seldom have the doors of the once gay Italian embassy been darker. There are several reasons for this, one of them being that members of the embassy are not invited out any more; another that Italian diplomats do not feel very much like going out anyway.

Prince Colonna, the very charming ambassador, happens to be married to a Greek wife, so his ideas on war with Greece can be left to the imagination. Other embassy members have close friends in Great Britain, Greece and the United States. There is no enthusiasm about the war.

Now banished from the United States is Admiral Alberto Lais, naval attache, involved in sabotaging the Italian ships seized in American harbors last week. For him departure from this country is especially heart-rending because he not only leaves behind an American wife and daughter, but what most people do not know, he has a son in the Italian navy. Thus father and son will be in Italy, with mother and daughter in the United States.

Admiral and Signora Lais were among the few who still entertained at dinner. Recently, among their guests were Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Breckenridge Long, with Sam Reber of the state department. Long once was ambassador to Rome, while Reber was stationed in the embassy there.

After dinner the jovial Admiral Lais took the gentlemen into his library, where he talked about his country and about his hopes that the war soon would be over. "You see," he said with a slightly pathetic smile, "I am half American."

Then the admiral gazed intently at a portrait on the table, a familiar portrait of a man in a helmet, with flashing eyes, pugnacious jaw, looking as if he was ready to lick the world. It was Benito Mussolini.

Perhaps symbolic, across the glass covering the portrait ran a long deep crack.

Note—Last week Admiral Lais allegedly ordered the sabotage of 28 Italian vessels and was asked by the state department to leave the country. The admiral had followed his leader.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I read in the late edition of a New York newspaper last evening that young Mr. Orson Welles certainly had a "flair" for the unusual in his theatrical adventures.

Perhaps Mr. Welles does go sniffing around, nosing out this and that by the infallibility of his sense of smell, but without wishing to appear too pedantic I would like to suggest that Mr. Welles has a gift for creating disturbances rather than a "flair" for the unusual. The word flair means a sense of smell. It just happens that Orson Welles is a restless and imaginative egoist with a talent for splitting camps into divergent groups, inspiring arguments that wreck tried friendships of 20 years standing, and a manner as engaging and sometimes as impertinent as a slap in the face.

Very few people take Mr. Welles casually. You either admire him or detest him. When his Martian broadcast hoodwinked a lot of people several years ago, he made a passel of enemies. He made enemies in Hollywood and on Broadway and on the air, for he is all things to all forms of artistic expression, including acting, orating, writing, directing, criticizing, and soothsaying. He is a headline hog. It isn't his fault. He is wholly consistent. His ways just happen to be different from other people's. He is altogether an extrovert, and he cares nothing for trodding on anybody's feet, be they great or small.

HIS last hand in New York is to be seen in the stage dramatization of the novel "Native Son." As usual, there is a wide and sometimes violent difference of opinion as to the merits of this play. Most of the critics gave it strong approval. One makes the unqualified statement that Welles is a "genius." Another thinks the play, as such, loses the clumsy power that was the novel's chief charm.

But I for one am not in favor of race plays that must necessarily appeal to emotionalism and sensationalism. I cannot see that any good can come of them and I can see where a great deal of harm might be the result. "Native Son," as such, unfolds in ten scenes without intermission and is played in soft lights. All this is Mr. Welles' doing, and very effective it is. But with all its dramatic qualities, its measured tempo and its obvious sincerity, it is a raw and brutal business that wounds and leaves scars and yet in no sense contributes to the solution of a tragic and heartbreaking problem.

AFTER the play's successful premiere, Mr. Welles hung around for a day or two, accepting the congratulations of his friends, then flew back to Hollywood. One report says he is to go to Mexico City. Another says he will remain in Hollywood. A third says he will return to New York and give his undivided time to the drama. Probably all three will happen; or if any man can go to Mexico and Hollywood on picture and radio chores while remaining exclusively in Manhattan wedded to the drama, Orson Welles is that man. There just isn't anybody else anywhere like him.

A Farmer's Diary

The Line Fence

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WHEN I was a lad, two of our neighbors who lived on rough adjoining farms, had a line fence built of stone between them. The land was fertile and raised good crops when the stones were hauled away. It seemed the line was the most convenient place to haul them, and this served two purposes—it marked the line of the old survey beyond dispute, and made a splendid barrier that kept even the most ambitious animals in their proper place.

In places, this dry wall became a work of art and stood the test of time because the foundation was the type of earth that heaved but little during the winter months. But along the hollows of the meadow, heavy boulders would sometimes fall away until a breach of several feet was made. This always occurred at the same familiar points.

When spring arrived, and the earth had thawed and settled, I saw these two neighbors, each on his own side, start at the highway and follow down, repairing the fence. Each picked up the stones that had rolled off onto his land and placed them on the wall again. After open winters, it took several days of heavy labor to repair the breaches.

Their toil was of mutual interest and they visited as they worked. Their time together at this job served every year to renew the old acquaintance. The hard rough flinty rocks they heaved upon the wall together welded their friendship closer.

Often I stood, as a boy, and marveled at the straightness of the line these two old men had made. It was more than a half mile long and stretched across a low valley and part way up a chestnut ridge. Toward the farther end the wall appeared no wider than a string.

These neighbors, every year, were more stooped with age and toil. One spring when the fence was scattered with wider rifts than I had seen before, I watched in vain to see my old friends go out to work together. April lengthened into May and May blended into June, and still no one had appeared to rebuild the fence.

Their farms went to their sons—whose hearts were not in the land. Each year the fine straight wall became widened more and irregular from neglect, until the line was just a mass of shapeless heaps. Cattle, hogs and sheep from one farm would get into the other's crops at night and when morning came fruitful fields and friendships were ruined.

Mutual ties of neighborliness were torn wider than the widest rifts along the precious wall. The aged fathers had built more wisely than they knew. Looking back at it now, it seems to me there was almost a parable enacted along that line of flinty stone.

BATES SETS UP PLAN FOR ARMY VISIT FRIDAY

19 Policemen To Form Escort For Troops Scheduled To Stay Here Over Night.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates today had completed arrangements for a police escort of 19 men for a U. S. army detachment scheduled to move into Mansfield Friday for an over night stay. The troop movement is one of a series Mansfield will experience during the coming months.

More than 500 soldiers, en route from Fort Knox, Ky., to Pine Camp near Watertown, N. Y. for summer training, will pass through the city Friday. Half of that number will spend the night at Battery D's armory here while the remainder will go on to the Ashland county fairgrounds.

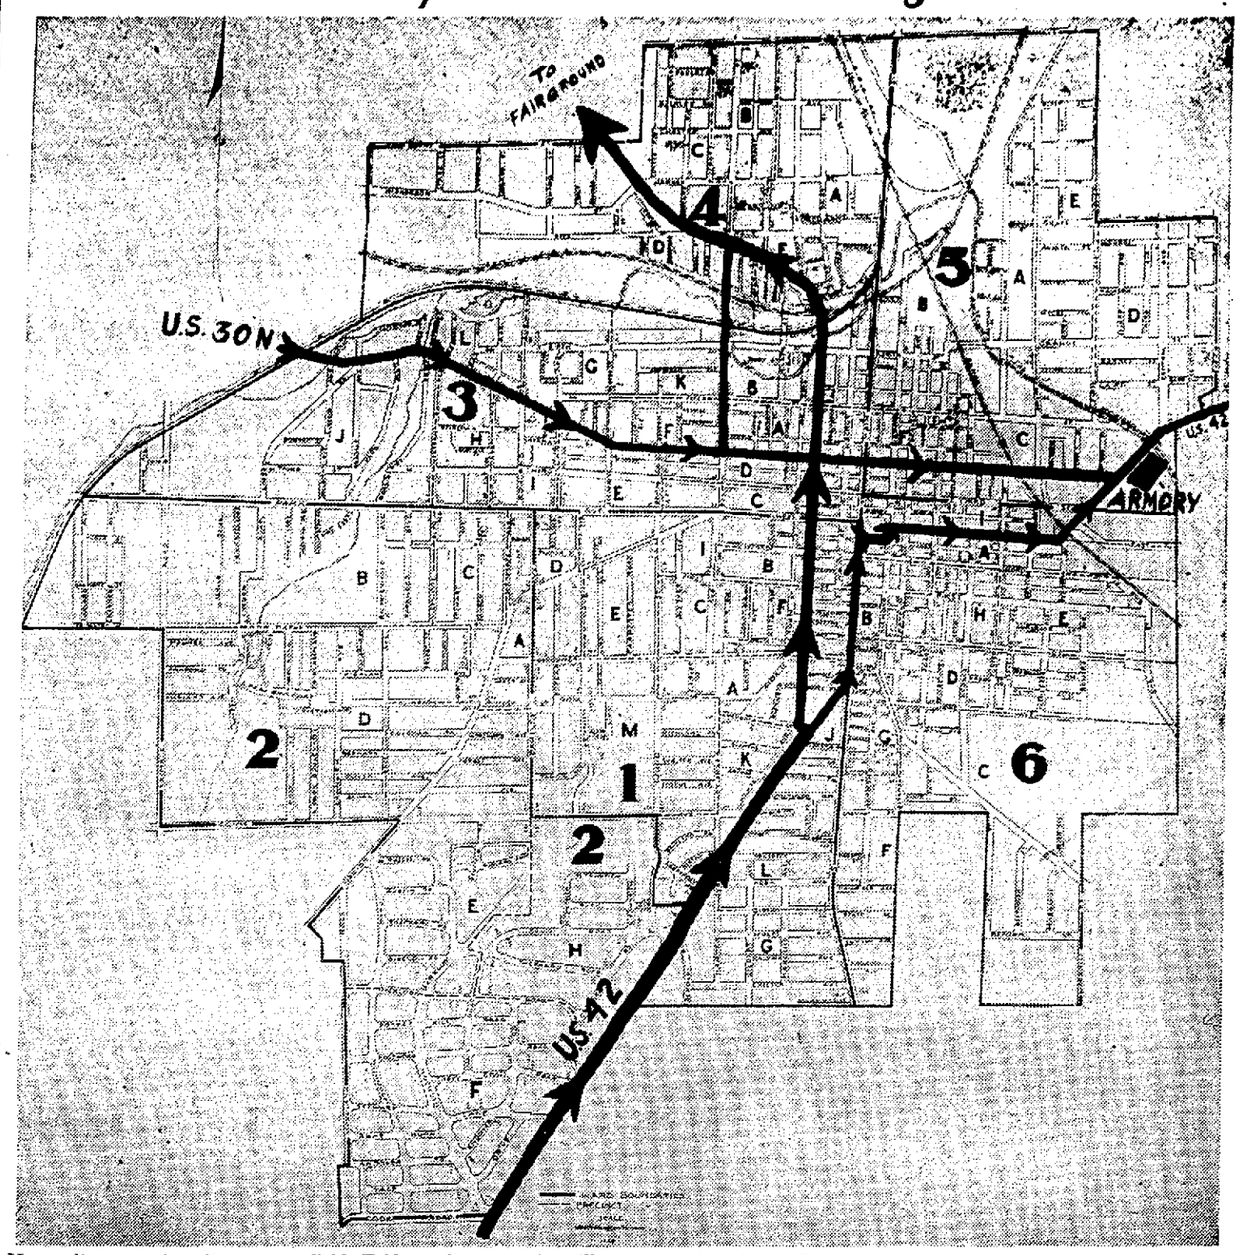
Bates said that the War department had informed him that Routes 42 and 30-N have been declared defense highways. He urged all motorists to avoid use of these routes through the city at times when they know that military groups will be travelling over them. Bates said that adequate advance notice will be given.

In regard to future troop movements, Bates said, only smaller detachments will be quartered overnight at the armory, the larger ones stopping at the Richland county fairgrounds on Springmill street. Troops planning to stop overnight at the fairgrounds will take certain routes through the city. Coming from the south off Route 42, the soldiers will swing off at Mendota street, up Mulberry and out Springmill street. Troops from the west will turn off Fourth street to Bowman street out Springmill. Those coming in from the north or east will follow Park avenue east to Adams street to Fourth street out Mulberry to Springmill street.

Troops stopping over night at the armory will stay on Route 42.

The troops coming through Friday will only be a small part of First Armored division from Fort Knox. Approximately 4,000 others will make the trip by train. Brig. Gen. Henry W. Baird will be in command of them at Pine Camp.

Here's How Army Units Will Move Through Mansfield



Heavy lines on the city map above show the routes to be taken by army units stopping overnight in Mansfield. When the first armored division, en route from Ft. Knox, Ky., to Pine Camp, N. Y., reaches Mansfield Friday afternoon, it will come in over Route 42 from the south, and part of the unit will encamp at the armory. Larger units coming in over Route 42 in the future will swing off Lexington avenue to Mulberry and proceed to the fairground to spend the night. With U. S. Route 30N also declared a military highway, army units coming into the city over that road will either swing to the north at Bowman street and thence to the Fairground, if in sufficiently large numbers, or continue over Fourth street to the armory if the contingents are small. No information has been received as yet to indicate that troops will come into Mansfield over Route 30N but they are expected to do so.

ICE AGE 'TRAP' NEAR LOCKLAND RICH IN RELICS

Workmen on National Defense Site Unearth Remains of Prehistoric Animals.

LOCKLAND, O.—(U.P.)—Workmen digging at the site of a projected national defense plant in Lockland have unearthed evidence of an ice-age "trap" rich in the remains of prehistoric animals which died there 10,000 to 25,000 years ago.

The trap was an ancient morass, filled with mires and quicksand, in which many mastodons and mammoths are believed to have gone to their death.

The geologically important area was discovered recently when power graders operated by workmen on the Wright Aeronautical Corporation plant turned up two tusks from a mastodon or mammoth, a number of small shells, a petrified log and other specimens.

The finds brought immediate visits to the site by geologists of the University of Cincinnati, who unearthed the fossil bones of a prehistoric bird, more shells which indicated the geologic nature of the area, and additional pieces of petrified wood.

According to Dr. Kenneth E. Casters, assistant profesor of geology at the university, the area was produced during the last phase of the ice age.

The southern border of the ice cap, Dr. Caster explained, was 10 or 15 miles north of the site into which the workmen now are digging. Waters from the glacier brought vast quantities of gravel and mud to Lockland and formed treacherous morasses, he explained.

Dr. Caster interprets discovery of several skeletons in an upright position as indicating slow strangulation and suffocation of animals in the mire and quicksand.

Shells of many mussels and river snails and buried logs, still sound at the core, indicate that the climate during the last of the ice advances was not inhospitable.

GETS 30 DAYS

Transient Sentenced After Admitting Thefts.

Jeff Harris, colored transient, arrested by police Tuesday was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail and fined $50 and costs by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in Municipal court this morning after he pleaded guilty to charges of petty larceny.

Harris admitted taking items valued at $2.71 from local stores, a pocket watch from Muir's drug store, and candy from the City News agency.

Before Harris was taken into custody a theft at Haring's Jewelry store, 34 South Park street, was reported to police. Viola Meister, clerk, stated that she missed two wrist watches, valued at $8.90, after the colored man had visited the store.

Police said Harris when questioned, claimed to know nothing about the watches.

South Called Nation's Dairy Of Tomorrow

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — (U.P.) — The South was hailed as "the nation's dairyland of tomorrow" in an address here by E. J. Mather, of Washington, president of Southern Dairies, Inc.

He said eight South Central states reported a 20 per cent rise in the number of cows during the past 10 years, compared with 8 per cent for the rest of the nation.

"Dairying will continue to grow in importance in Alabama and the South because this section enjoys the natural advantages of cheap, practically year-around pastures," he said.

"The reason the increase in milk production didn't quite keep pace with the increase in cow production is the very rapidity of dairying's growth in the South.

INDIAN JOINS ARMY

PHOENIX, Ariz. — (U.P.) — Cecil Selestewa became the first Hopi Indian to enlist in the army since the World war when he volunteered for a year's training, according to draft officials. Selestewa, a member of the Corn Clan and a participant in the tribe's famed snake dance, said he liked army life.

Life Too Dull So Co-eds Pay Cost of Dates

CEDAR FALLS, Ia.—(U.P.)—With co-eds footing the bills, social life is flourishing again at Lowa State Teachers College.

For several months dating languished at the school, where there are two women students for every man. The men just didn't seem interested.

Finally, the women threw coyness to the winds, and invited the men to a "Femme's Fancy" dance—all expenses paid.

It worked, and the process was repeated at the college's Valentine day dance. Now the girls are saving their spending money and lining up dates for the Mardi Gras ball.

At first the college paper protested at the reversal of social procedure. Its pleas were in vain.

SOME BARGES!

COLUMBUS, O.—(U.P.)—A new pair of shoes are constructed" for John William Kirwin, freshman at Ohio State University.

Kirwin, 6 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 230 pounds, and is still growing. His shoes were made by a Lebanon, O., shoe builder. At present young Kirwin wears a size 16 but the new shoes were considerably larger, nearer size 20. The new shoes are 16 inches in length and nearly 6 inches wide.

Henry (Lighthorse Harry) Lee, who as a member of Congress was chosen to make a funeral oration on George Washington, used the now familiar words, "First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

ATTEND MEETING

Officers of the Richland County Dairy Herd Improvement association attended a meeting in Mt. Gilead last night to discuss plans for improving herd testing service to the farmers of the county.

George B. Ganyard, Richland county agent; Homer Bungard, tester; Max Drake of Lucas, president of the county association; Otto Kline of Mansfield; G. E. Rader, Galion, and Waldo Crum, Shelby, expect to attend.

HOLIDAY LIKE WORK

ST. ALBANS, Vt.—(U.P.)—When Letter Carrier R. H. Domey gets a day off, he makes it a real "postman's holiday" by lugging a 40-pound pack up and down mountain sides. He is president of the local section of the Green Mountain Club.

"Nothing Seemed To Help Until I Gave Jolo a Chance," Says Well-Known Piqua Man.

States he endured tremendous suffering, ailing stomach distresses. Was bothered with frequent painful headaches until he tried Jolo which greatly relieved his troubles.

Relieved of their sufferings, often for the first time in years, scores of happy men and women continue to give Jolo full credit for happy relief obtained through the use of famous new medicine.

MR. CHARLES KNICK

Mr. Charles Knick, living at 125 First Street, Piqua, Ohio says:

"I suffered from constipation for quite some time and this serious condition soon caused other distressful symptoms to develop. My stomach was always in a sour condition. I was bothered with a bloated feeling and shortness of breath which always caused me to have painful indigestion. My stomach felt full like a rock, with a heavy feeling, which caused me to have a bad taste in my mouth. I was unable to sleep well at night and was bothered with many nervous headaches.

"I was almost to the place where relief from my many troubles seemed practically impossible but then I read about Jolo and it proved beneficial in every way. I feel so much better I can't give Jolo enough praise."

CHAPTER XXI

Paul lit a cigaret. "They were, but I still have a few ends to tie. We're not in any actual danger yet. Trust me for that."

The cabin was small, furnished with a table and three chairs. It had been intended for a lounge but doubtless hd not been used for anything as it was permeated with a musty odor. The wood was old and rotted from sea air. There was one porthole but it was covered from the outside so they could not see on deck. There was no sound of activity without.

Paul watched Joan as she explored their tiny prison. "You have more nerve than any other girl I ever saw," he said, admiringly, repeating what he had said the night Karl killed Strom and Joan had promised to help trap Karl after Paul revealed he was a F. B I. man.

"My knees are shaking," Joan admitted, smiling, "but I wouldn't let Karl know how I felt. It would give him too much satisfaction."

"Good girl!" Paul approved.

"And," Joan continued, "this may be your idea of 'no actual danger' but it doesn't seem that way to me."

The gentle throb of the ship's engines warned them the freighter was moving. "Here we go," Paul said. "Try to trust me, Joan, that this is the best way. I took you with me tonight deliberately because I was afraid that it would be worse for you if you were left behind"

"What about Pat?"

"Pat doesn't know anything. They won't be apt to harm her."

In the dim light of a small electric bulb they waited. The silence was maddening. Only the ship creaked laboriously. Joan removed her hat and tried to rest her head against the hard back of a wicker chair. As the ship rolled more, Paul said, "We're going through the Gate now. We'll soon be on the open sea."

"Where is Karl taking us? Can't you tell me that?"

"I'd rather not. The first thing to find out is how he intends to get rid of those plans," he added. "Might ship them to a submarine."

"A submarine!" Joan cried in dismay.

"It's not a pretty picture, is it?" Paul said grimly "That's why I don't want you to know too much"

"I trust him," Joan thought as she gazed into his kind, good-looking face. She smiled a little at the unruly lock of brown hair which seemed continually to be out of place. There was a strength about Paul, a quiet strength, that inspired her admiration and respect.

Karl did not reappear but a sailor unlocked the door and mumbled something to Paul in German. "He says he'll show you to your cabin," Paul explained.

"I'd rather stay here!"

But Paul advised her to go without objection, so Joan followed the sailor out on deck. He opened a door and motioned for her to go inside. Hesitatingly she obeyed.

There was a bunk with a quilt folded neatly upon it, a washstand and one porthole through which Joan could see the deck. Fog enveloped the sea and it was impossible to tell how far away from shore they were. She hung her coat upon an iron hook and lay down upon the bunk, drawing the quilt over her. There was no light in the cabin but one on the deck gave a faint glow through the porthole.

In a few minutes she heard the sound of footsteps, and sitting up she saw that Paul was being shown into the cabin next to hers. Even though the door was locked behind him and a sailor remained on guard outside, Joan was comforted to know that he was near. She lay back and closed her eyes. The ship quivered as it rose to meet each swell of the sea and settled itself with a heavy shudder back into the water. The motion was soothing, almost hypnotic in its power to induce sleep.

Joan had not expected to have any rest that night but she found herself overcome with fatigue. Paul had asked her to trust him and she felt reassured by his own confidence in the situation. She was glad that he had not told her all the story. Perhaps it was better to follow blindly than to know too much.

As sleep was claiming her, she heard a faint tapping from Paul's side of the wall, and she felt a sweet sense of comfort and peace.

Joan wakened to feel the warmth of the sun upon her face. Going to the porthole, she looked out. There was a sentry outside the door. The blue water seemed to stretch as far as eye could see. No land was visible, no other ship; the sky was cloudless.

She dashed cold water on her pale cheeks, and tried to smooth her wrinkled black dress. In her purse she found a comb, powder and lipstick and with these she made herself as presentable as possible.

When she had finished, she rapped on the door, and demanded, "Let me out. Open this door!"

Surprisingly enough her request was granted. The sailor stood aside, with a curious glance as she walked rapidly to the small lounge. She had hoped to find Paul, but instead it was Karl Miller who greeted her.

Karl was dressed in white. In appearance and manner he was as smooth and impeccable as always. But the same qualities that once charmed Joan now disgusted her as she asked coldly, "Where is Paul?"

"Do you expect me to tell you?" Karl parried. "Sit down and have some breakfast with me."

She noticed that the cabin seemed cleaner and more cheerful than on the previous night. The chairs had been brushed, the floor scrubbed and the table was covered with a spotless white cloth. The ship moved steadily over the smooth blue water. There was peace and tranquility in this sunny morning. It seemed almost impossible to believe that she and Paul were captives heading for a destination and a fate unknown.

"Something's happened to Paul!" she thought as the hours dragged by and he did not appear. The sailor who had stood guard outside his door had disappeared and the mysterious silence that hovered over the ship seemed full of meaning. Joan wondered about the deck but saw nothing of interest. Once Karl ascended the steps to the captain's quarters and she caught a glimpse of him. She remembered the night he had taken her there, the first time he had declared his love for her. She could remember things like that now without bitterness, without regret.

Where was Paul? This subject held her interest most. She dared not think what might become of her without him. She refused to let herself even speculate upon the possibility that Karl might have dealt his swift vengeance upon Paul, as he had done with Eric Strom.

But the day passed, the night, the next day, and still she had not seen him. And the next morning as she saw Karl coming on deck, she demanded, "What have you done with Paul?"

The weather was becoming more tropical The warm days and nights made Joan's heavy woolen dress uncomfortable. She was cross and exhausted as she faced Karl Miller. "Where is he?"

Karl regarded the face before him without interest. This was not the exciting glamorous Joan he had known. This was an older girl, with a hard coldness in her green eyes. The jet-black hair that had once been so perfectly kept hung about her shoulders. There was a bitter expression about her mouth.

Joan suspected what he was thinking. No doubt Karl Miller would not find her interesting or lovely now, and she was glad. She stood resolutely before him, her sleeves rolled above her elbow, her hands clutching the rail.

"I want to see Paul."

"All right," Karl agreed surprisingly. He summoned a sailor and spoke to him in German

A few minutes later Paul appeared. His coat and tie were gone and his shirt was open at the throat. He looked tired but more than that, there was wrath in his brown eyes. "What's the idea?" he demanded as he saw Karl.

URGES U. S. TO SPEED HELP FOR BRITAIN

Warner, Legion Commander, Tells Audience Here to Let Nothing Stop British Aid.

we certainly don't want to be a craven nation. Let us meet situations bravely as they appear and be able to say we have been true to ourselves."

Predicting that Hitler will never be able to land an invading force in England or gain air supremacy over Britain, Warner said the British morale is holding up remarkably well.

"They have a deep-seated determination to win," he said. "They thought they were almost licked under the terrific battering from Hitler's planes last summer, but the English are coming back now. Their troops are actually eager to clash with the enemy. The Royal Air Force pilots are relaxed and confident.

Warner praised the British home guard battalions, made up of 1,750,000 volunteers who serve without pay.

"With them on guard, I'd hate to try to land an invading force in England," he commented.

The British anti-aircraft defense has succeeded in forcing Nazi bombers up to 10,000 feet or more, making it more difficult for them to hit their marks and greatly reducing the damage to London from bombs, he said. Last summer the bombers were dropping their destruction from 1,000 to 2,000 feet up, the bombs often striking at the base of buildings, he said:

England, with a life and death struggle on its hands, has no labor disputes to hinder its war production, he pointed out. It has labor "impediments," but means have been worked out to keep factories working 24 hours a day.

Warner said his Legion delegation on the tour gained the impression that Britain has a number of "green" men in the navy and they may have difficulty manning the destroyers we are sending them.

He said the Legion, as far back as 1938, advocated an adequate defense in the event of an emergency such as the one now facing the nation.

"We wanted to be prepared on land and sea to keep war from our shores and to meet aggressors before they had a chance to come to us," he said. "Hitler is our target now, and the Legion calls for all practicable aid to Britain to defeat Hitler, a menace to the United States and everything for which it stands."

Warner outlined a five-point program which he said would help solve our present national and international problems. Its points are:

1. Consider the interests of the United States first and do nothing to destroy the national integrity and identity of our country.
2. In our preparation for national defense, preserve the fundamental basic concepts of our form of government.
3. Cast aside all partisanship and selfishness and work together in our defense program.
4. Be loyeal to the president and others we helped to place in public office. Support them and co-operate with them.
5. Face the facts as they are, not as we would like to have them. Be realistic.

R. B. Gardner, past Ohio department commander of the Legion, presided during the program at the theater and at a dinner at the Mansfield-Leland hotel earlier in the evening.

He introduced visiting Legion notables, including Floyd Hartpence of Westerville, vice Ohio department commander; James Favret of Cincinnati, past state treasurer of the Legion and former national executive committeeman from Ohio; and John Burns of Salem, past Ohio department treasurer.

Cammander Earl Saltzgaber of Earle McVey post and Mayor William J. Locke gave brief welcome addresses at the theater meeting. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church and chaplain of McVey post, gave the invocation. The benediction was by Msgr. R. C. Gobel, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic church.

Following the lecture, the McVey post held open house and a dance at the Legion home for visiting Legionnaires and other guests.

Legionnaires Honor National Commander at Dinner

Legionnaires took time out to pose for pictures last night as they entertained National Commander Milo J. Warner of Toledo. At top left, Mrs. Frank Duff, 555 Highland avenue, and James Brownscombe of McVey Post lead singing of songs that were popular at the time of the last war. At top right, Past State Commander R. B. Gardner, National Commander Warner and Msgr. R. C. Goebel of St. Peter's Catholic church at the banquet table. At bottom, Gardner, Msgr. Goebel, Commander Warner, Walter Beckley, Rev. G. E. Swoyer and James F. Carrigan. Beckley and Carrigan are past comamnders of McVey Post and Rev. Swoyer is post chaplain. Carrigan was in charge of arrangements for last night's meeting.

James Caesar Petrillo, head of the musicians' union, is set to crack down on the country's "juke boxes." Says they take the place of too many live musicians.

Josette Daly, the New York deb, signed a movie contract (in El Morocco) which will put her under the wing of Joe Pasternak, Deanna Durbin's master mind. The 18-year-old beauty may star in the film for which Brenda Frazier was originally slated.

TYRONE POWER and Linda Darnell are getting slightly oiled as they make "Blood and Sand." Their clothes, that is. Rouben Mamoulian, the director, has them sprayed before each scene to give the garments an oil texture.

It is the director's idea, using the color camera, to follow composition and coloring of the famous Spanish painters. In the early scenes, showing Tyrone and Linda as sweethearts, he has followed the color and style of Murillo, noted for his browns and sepias. Goya, famed for studies of the common people, will dominate other scenes, and so will Sorolla, the master of light. The arena scenes are being "painted" in the style of Carlos Llopis, the Spanish bullfight artist. For Tyrone's death scene in the chapel, with Linda beside him, Mamoulian reverts to El Greco, the painter of cathedrals and religious scenes.

PEORIA, Ill.—(U.P.)—Automobile tires made from corn stalks sound like a strange dream, but it may become a reality if experiments being conducted at the new research laboratory here prove successful.

ROOSEVELT ASKS MORE SPEED IN DEFENSE WORK

Leaders Expected To Put on Pressure After FDR, Wallace Talks.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Defense chiefs were expected today to put on pressure for speed and more speed in preparing America's defenses after word from President Roosevelt that there still was room for an awful lot of improvement.

Although the production has been greatly accelerated in recent months, Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference yesterday that he still was not satisfied with its progress.

Asked how it could be speeded up, he laughed and replied that could be done by using chestnut burrs just as they have been used to inspirit a mule.

Questioned as to why the program was going along so slowly, he said there were thousands of reasons—individuals, mostly human beings.

A few hours later Vice President Wallace, speaking to the foreign policy association in New York, asserted that "only defeatism on the psychological and economic fronts in the United States" could prevent a British victory over Germany.

"A Nazi victory and a Nazi peace are unthinkable," Wallace said. "To avoid such a calamity we will help ourselves through helping England by all methods short of war. Britain will win."

Mr. Roosevelt covered several aspects of the defense program at his conference, his comments included:

1. That the labor situation in defense plants is working in the general direction of a law providing for cooling off periods during which strikes could not be called.

2 That defense industries, bases and stations are being distributed on a national basis, with the greatest speed and efficiency in mind, rather than with the thought of extending equal dollars and cents benefits to each state.

3. That the president preferred to "go along with the overwhelming majority of the newspapers at this time" in opposition to censorship. He authorized use of the direct quotation.

4. That military aid to Yugoslavia was being rushed across the seas as fast as possible.

The president reported that the government had actually spent $1,800,000,000 for construction and acquisition of materials in the first three months of 1941 as against $1,400,000,000 in the last half of 1940.

UNUSUAL HOBBY

TOLEDO, O.—(U.P.)—Otto Neuber, a master mechanic, has an unusual hobby—that of drawing portraits of great statesmen by outlining them in the script of their most famous documents.

Neuber has created a portrait of Abraham Lincoln on a hand-written background of the Emancipation Proclamation. To form the features of the portrait, he drew certain letters of the proclamation in darker ink. Thomas Jefferson was outlined by Neuber on the script of the Declaration of Independence.

SEE PASSAGE OF FUND BILL

Republican Leaders Predict Appropriation Measure Won't Be Changed.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Passage of the $351,867,919 biennial appropriation bill in the house without major changes was predicted by Republican leaders today as the measure came up for a vote.

Speaker William McCulloch said the budget recommendations for operation of the state government in 1941-42 were "sound and reasonably conservative" and that the finance committee had done a "fine job" in preparing the bill.

Senate leaders have given assurances, it was reported, that the measure will be disposed of in their branch in time to permit adjournment of the legislature by May 2.

The senate now is trudging along with a lot of so-called "special interest" legislation. An example on its calendar today was a bill creating a state apple commission to promote the apple industry, an assessment of one-cent-a bushel would be imposed on apple sales to finance the commission's activities.

The senate yesterday defeated the bill to establish stricter regulations for horse race tracks and increase the state's tax on betting. The vote was 12 yes to 18 no, with three senators not voting.

Enactment of a two-year extension of the .65 per cent utility excise tax also was completed by the senate and approval was given to another measure revamping the old age pension law.

FBI CALLED TO PROBE DYNAMITE

Agents Will Investigate Finding of Explosive At Auburn.

AUBURN, N. Y.—(INS)—Agents of the federal bureau of investigation were called in today when a stick of dynamite was found in a coal pile at the International Harvester Company plant.

Coal shipments to the plant are handled by two companies. Workmen shoveling the coal into a mealing oven discovered the dynamite.

No explanation has been advanced as to how the explosive reached the coal supply, or whether the dynamite was placed in the coal before or after shipment to the plant.

SENATOR SHEPPARD, 'FATHER OF PROHIBITION', SUCCUMBS AT 66

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Sen. Morris W. Sheppard, D., Tex., the dean of congres sand the "father of prohibition," died early today of an intra-cranial hemorrhage at Walter Reed hospital. He was 66 years old.

Sheppard was stricken at his home last Sunday, but the seriousness of his illness was not revealed until yesterday when Dr. George W. Calver, congressional physician announced in a special bulletin that the senator's condition was "considered critical."

Sheppard was chairman of the senate military affairs committee which has had a heavy load of legislative work during the past year. Calver said the senator had shown the effects of overwork and strain for several weeks.

Mrs. Sheppard and one of his three daughters were at the senator's bedside when death came at 5:30 a. m.

Sheppard had served continuously in the senate for 28 years and prior to that he served 11 continuous years in the house. No other member of congress can match his 39 consecutive years as a member either of the house or senate.

SEN. M. W. SHEPPARD

During that time he has devoted his time especially to two subjects—prohibition and army problems. He was co-author of the 18th amendment.

Recent months have seen many of the major pieces of legislation go through his hands. Most important was the conscription bill—the first in peacetime history—which he piloted successfully through the upper chamber early last summer.

Sheppard was born May 28, 1875, at Wheatville, a village in the east Texas hills of Morris county.

RAZE BUILDING

Workmen To Start Tearing Down Plymouth School.

Demolition of Plymouth elementary school building was to be started today, Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools, announced.

While the building is being razed and the new $75,000 structure erected, pupils will attend classes in the high school building. About 400 students are affected by the change.

A bond issue passed two weeks ago by Plymouth school district voters assured $47,500 toward construction of the building. Government funds provide for NYA labor in the amount of $30,000.

Laff-a-Day

"Aren't you afraid of being struck by lightning, General?"

A Mansfield minister's wife is "getting tired," she tells her friends, of getting out of bed in the wee small hours of the morning to answer the telephone, only to discover the person on the other end of the line is trying to call a night club. The two telephones have the same set of numbers, but in slightly different order.

Jimmy Lemley, who has operated the confection and news stand in the courthouse for the past four years although he is totally blind, faced a battle today to keep his business stand in the county building. Citing financial losses in operation of the stand, the Ohio Commission for the Blind told Jimmy it will be closed unless business shows an upturn. The commission owns the equipment and set up the stand with the cooperation of the county commissioners. Jimmy owns the stock. Undaunted by the threat of losing the stand, Jimmy said he would "find another location where I can make more money."

Then when the child insisted taking another run through the leaves the dog jumped on his master's back and made such a nuisance of himself that the young owner took him home and locked him up in disgust. But even the child admits he has a real protector.

ACT SEEN AS POLICY LEAD FOR OTHERS

Diplomats Expect That U. S. Will Follow Example of Seizure.

(By United Press)

MEXICO CITY—Mexico, having appropriated 12 Germen and Italian ships for its own use, was seen in government and diplomatic circles today as establishing policy for all western hemisphere nations.

They particularly anticipated that Mexico's big neighbor to the north would follow the example soon, pointing to President Roosevelt's remark yesterday that he had ample powers to take over for United States use, Italian and German ships now held in "protective custody."

Mexico anticipated stern diplomatic reaction from Berlin and Rome and there was talk that relations might be so strained they wouldn't hold. Apparently to beat Nazi protests, Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padillo ordered the Mexican minister in Berlin to return home at once "to report on the situation." It was doubted in authoritative circles that he would return while the war continues.

Like the United States and other American nations, Mexico had taken Axis ships in her harbors (10 Italian, two German) into "protective custody." Last night she took the further step of taking them over for her own use, saying that she would pay "just" indemnities after the war.

Mexico's position is somewhat different from that of the other republics. Before the war, Germany and Italy received large quantities of Mexican oil and were to have delivered industrial products—in Italy's case, two new tank ships—in return. They didn't make good and Mexico suggests that the value of the ships approximates what is due her from Germany and Italy.

Germany and Italy have already protested the custodianship put over their ships and protests to the seizure were awaited.

Seizure of the ship was ordered by President Manuel Avila Camacho who said it was forced upon the government because the war had disrupted neutral shipping. Additionally, he said, the danger of sabotage made it impossible to return ships to their crews.

Appeal Filed on Intangible Tax on Athletic Clubs

COLUMBUS—(INS)—A plan of Ohio Tax Commissioner William S. Evatt to levy intangible taxes against professional athletic groups based upon the value of their players, today faced its first determent in an appeal filed by the Columbus baseball club.

In the appeal, signed by club President Al Bannister, the club contended it was assessed illegally in the amount of $297—a three mill levy on intangibles valued at $99,127.

"If the assessment included tax based on the valuation of the team's players, then the assessment was illegal," the appeal declared.

John Edwards, chief of the intangible tax division, asserted that the assessment represents what "we believe is the actual value of the players to the club. We are not taxing salaries or contracts. However, the club has the exclusive rights to players' services, and these services, we contend, have a definite value."

FINAL MEETING OF BETHANY CIRCLE HELD

Dr. Lizabeth Mainzer Speaks at Concluding Session of Church Organization Held at R. M. Calene Home.

DR. LIZABETH MAINZER, although comparatively a newcomer to Mansfield, has become prominently known in the past few months by her interesting talks before various club groups. Yesterday afternoon Dr. Mainzer entertained a gathering of 65 women at the home of Mrs. R. M. Calene, 132 Parkwood boulevard, at a meeting of Bethany Circle of the First Presbyterian church.

"Impressions of Palestine" was the subject chosen by Dr. Mainzer, who held her audience really enthralled by her fascinating manner and informative topic. A resident physician in Palestine for more than a year and a half she was well informed on her subject and told the group of many unique phases of the life there. She and her husband were there at the time they were having riots and they experienced many harrowing events during that period. The extremes in the manners of living there which include the most modern to the very primitive were explained, as well as the various types of religious cults.

Luncheon was served to the large gathering Tuesday at 1:30 o'clock. Mrs. James Hill and Mrs. Norman Wolfe presided at the service table which was attractively decorated. The affair was an Italian luncheon, the last of the series of international menus to be given during the past year. Mrs. W. J. Bishop was chairman of the luncheon committee, and was assisted by Mrs. Arthur Smith, Mrs. Wade Burleson, Mrs. Charles Hughes, Mrs. H. F. MacGrath, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Wolfe, Mrs. Lewis McCullough and Mrs. Harold Kroegher.

The meeting was opened with an Easter prayer given by Mrs. Charles Farry, retiring president.
